

Pat Harris

Pat Harris is a Financial Educator who is known to many as someone with a warm heart. No matter who she encounters she is sure to leave them with a smile. As an Atlanta native, she takes pride in her community and believes in helping people in need. After serving in the United Parcel Services for 28 years operating an office and managing over 150 drivers, she took an early retirement on July 31, 2016 to follow her passion for helping people through financial education.

She is currently a Marketing Director with World Financial Group. As a financial professional and an educator, Pat is committed to promoting positive economic growth across the United States. With a small number of states requiring some form of financial education before graduating high school, she is devoted to reaching as many families as possible to help them build wealth and secure their financial future.

Whether she is in front of a group or one on one with you, she believes in giving you the “Authentic Pat” someone who is not afraid to share her own personal experiences to help get you where you need to be. She also serves as a Board Member with Financial Parent Academy, a nonprofit that teaches both parents and children financial education.

She is a wife and a mother of 2 daughters and 5 beautiful grandchildren. When she is not out serving, she enjoys spending time with her circle of love. Pat is a woman on the move and desires to leave a rich legacy behind by equipping others with the necessary information to live the new American Dream of “Financial Freedom”.
