

Elexis O'neal

Elexis O'neal is a dedicated financial educator and law student. She is a native of Atlanta, Ga and currently seeking her Bachelors of Science degree in criminal law with a concentration in criminal behavior at Strayer University. She desires to help equip people with the necessary information they need to live the lifestyle they desire.

This past summer, she had an opportunity to intern for Congressman Hank Johnson, who serves as the U.S. Representative for Georgia's 4th congressional district. She is currently working as a legal secretary at a law office. She is also an active member of the NAACP.

Although her first love is law, she is also on a mission to help others with financial education. As a member of Diva 4 Wealth, she helps facilitate workshops for women to help lead them to financial success. She is also a Board Member and Secretary for Financial Parent Academy, a nonprofit organization committed to helping both parents and children learn how to build a solid financial foundation. Having a daughter herself, she is very committed to helping the academy reach as many young people as possible to teach financial literacy.

Anyone who knows Elexis knows she has a heart for people and serves with a willing spirit. In her spare time, she volunteers with the Young Generation Movement and the Atlanta Volunteer Lawyer Foundation. As a wife and mother, she is committed to making sure her family as well as her community have an opportunity to get the education they need to elevate to a higher level of living.